From Brother Michael Green

Dear Brothers, Friends and Colleagues

It was expressed so naturally and spontaneously that the significance of it may have been missed.

During a panel session at last week's wonderful biennial Conference for our Australian Marist Schools, Conor Ashleigh¹ recounted a little conversation he had had recently while on assignment in Central Africa. A priest, intrigued by Conor's European ethnicity and his presence in a poor and otherwise entirely African location, had asked him if perhaps he was a member of a religious order. Conor replied simply, "I'm with the Marist community".

It said little but it said everything. What a profound expression of the new Marist reality, one that is developing a broader sense of communion, identity, and belonging as each year goes by. During the same session, Joe McCarthy challenged us to see ourselves – we Marists – as an ecclesial movement: a faith community in the Church that is inclusive of a broad range of Christian men and women – younger and older, men and women, lay and religious and clergy – who are committed to St Marcellin's way of Marist spirituality, community and ministry. Above all else, the Conference was a representative expression of that.

If we are an ecclesial faith community, then we need to gather. Not virtually or conceptually, but in flesh and blood. We need to be community. We did that in Cairns, and the hope is that the several people from each school who were there – principals, leaders and future leaders – are now able to take the spirit of the event back to the more than fifty Marist school communities around the country.

It was such a privilege for us to have the successor of Marcellin – our Superior General, Brother Emili Turú – in our midst! Brother Emili was engaging, inspiring and challenging in his invitation to us to put on Marian aprons (both literally and figuratively) in order to serve one another, to create the disposition of Marian interiority, and to build Marian-style community. So, also the other key presenters – Provincial Brother Jeff Crowe, Scripture scholar Sister Michele Connolly, and Catholic educational leader Dr Paul Sharkey – and all of the other session and workshop leaders and liturgy animators created for us a rich experience.

Brother Emili proposed to us that if we are to be the "Church of the Apron", then we need to position ourselves as did Jesus in the act of washing the feet at the Last Supper – that is, below. The servant looks up rather than down at those he or she is serving and, in doing so, is able to have a better sense of their world view, is more able to walk in their shoes. Perhaps it's a little unfair and naughty, but I found myself contrasting such an image with another that I had seen just two days beforehand: rows of mitred bishops perched on an elevated sanctuary disconnectedly high above the throng of three million young people on Copacabana Beach. What a difference it would have been had each of the shepherds been physically seated down on the sand, each among his flock. But the liturgists would have never been able to deal with that concept! (But I am unkind: I know that more than a few of these same bishops were indeed in the midst of their diocesan groups during the prayer vigil the previous night.)

We Marists are called to personify the Marian dimension of the Church – the one that many ecclesiologists would describe as its primary orientation. It's down on the sand, in the midst of the young, where we Marists are most at home.

MLF TEAM APPOINTMENTS

We are delighted to announce the two changes to the MLF Team for 2014:

Ryan Gato (Administration Coordinator at St Peter's Maitland) and Elizabeth Falconer (Head of Arts at Marist College Ashgrove) will be on team next year, based in Sydney and Brisbane respectively.

The Province is grateful to the Principals of each school for allowing Ryan and Elizabeth to be seconded to these roles for 2014. The appointments were made following an application process that attracted a very strong field from our Australian Marist Community, and was managed by a selection panel comprised of Tony Clarke, Julia Lederwasch and Brother David Hall.

MARIST SCHOOLS CONFERENCE

Some 180 Marists gathered in Cairns last week for the biennial Marist Schools Conference, with the theme "He Gave Us the Name of Mary". It was a singular privilege and great blessing to have our Superior General, Brother Emili Turú, as our main presenter. It was a most engaging and inspiring time for all, and some key directions for us as a Province community were addressed. Thanks to all who helped to make it happen and to our local hosts, St Augustine's College.

Thinking of visiting The Hermitage?

The Hermitage in France – the house of St Marcellin – is visited each year by many Australian Marists. It is set up as a house of hospitality for Marist pilgrims and visitors from around the world. We receive frequent enquiries from Marists who are planning a European trip about the possibility of including a stay at The Hermitage. The short answer is: you will be made very welcome. CAPACITY BUILDING FOR OUR MARIST MISSION IN ASIA

Our mission in the Marist world often means a great need for access to funds. Without this, work cannot continue and much needed education and support for local communities would cease to exist.

As the sun set on Saturday July 21 three of the Marist Solidarity (MSol) team (Br Allen Sherry, Executive Director, Catherine Hannon, Volunteering, Advocacy and Projects Officer and Michael Coleman, Communications, MSA Schools Liaison and Projects Officer) arrived in Bangkok, Thailand to present at two workshops for Marist Brothers and lay partners hosted by FMSI (Marist Solidarity International Foundation) over two weeks.

The first workshop, on project funding and proposal writing, aimed to enable Brothers and Lay Marists to access the much needed funds. The second workshop, led by Catherine Hannon, was on child rights and protection and aimed to improve the understanding of issues that our world faces around child protection. The tools for implementing best practices were also presented.

Having over thirty Marist Brothers and lay partners from across all of Asia come together with such passion reflects highly on the desire for forward movement in our mission.

After months of preparation both workshops have now been completed. The team experienced an extraordinary amount of energy being passionately injected into a wide variety of projects. To be a part of such a diverse group of Marists and to catch a glimpse of the future of Marists in Asia was a privilege.

REMAR NEWS

The Remar Ministry Team have continued to deliver our dynamic and vibrant Marist youth ministry program across our Nation. We have now completed our Red Caravel Day and Blue Retreats for 2013. We are currently preparing for the upcoming Gold Retreat which will be held in mid-August. In preparation for this retreat, Gold Helms from across the Country gathered on Friday, July 26 for their final inservice. During the final prayer on this day, the RMT took time to affirm each helm present and to sincerely acknowledge the role they have played within their Caravel over the three year Remar journey. On behalf of all the 2013 Gold rowers I would like to sincerely thank all our Gold Helms for the important roles they have played in the lives of these young adults.
